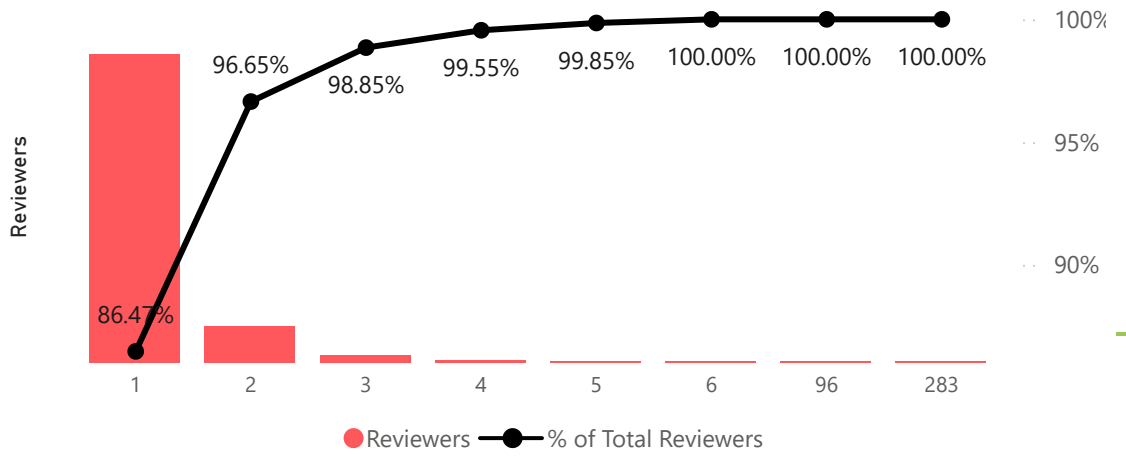
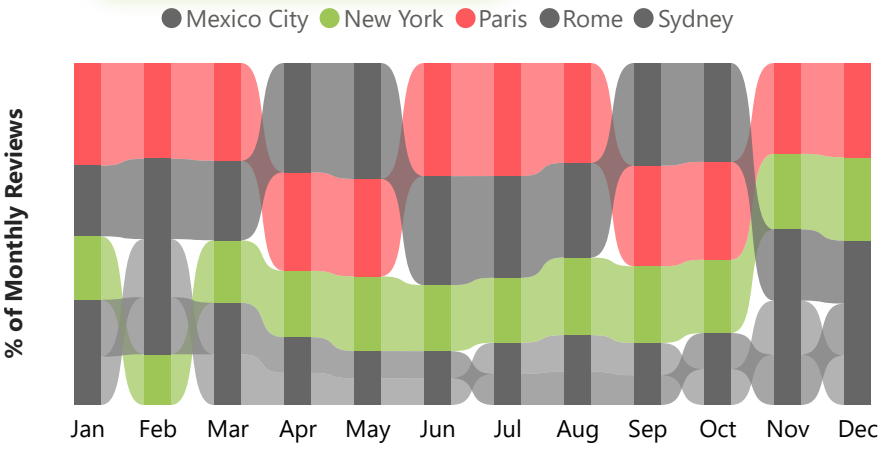
Review Frequency



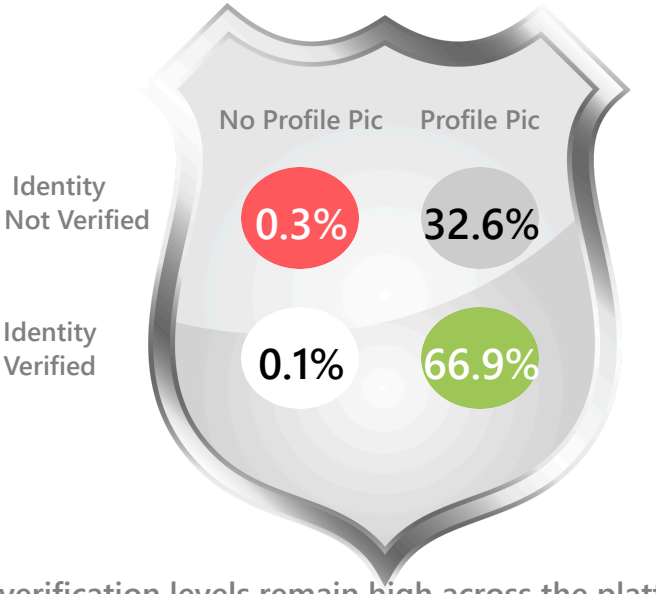
Review behavior is heavily concentrated around single interactions, with the majority of users leaving only one review. This indicates that most guests provide feedback for a single stay rather than reviewing multiple listings.

Trust

Seasonality



Review activity shows clear seasonal trends across cities. European destinations such as Paris and Rome peak during the April–August period, aligning with the summer travel season.



Host verification levels remain high across the platform, with a large majority of profiles fully verified. This suggests strong trust signals and platform credibility for guests.
